Chris Levy talks about:

Close Encounters - a communications workshop for creative coaching and constructive confrontation.

This workshop covers two important aspects of our day-to-day communication. Participants improve their ability to discuss significant issues with others, and also to confront difficult or unwanted behaviour with work colleagues, family members, and business associates. These techniques apply equally well in the workplace or at home.

The major segments of the workshop include:

Dynamic Discovery: How to help someone explore a business or personal issue so that they can

- discover their deeper thoughts and feelings, devise their own solutions, and determine a positive course of action.

Constructive Confronting: How to confront a person about behaviour which needs to change, in such a

- way that he or she will be encouraged to discuss the key issues with you in a receptive and constructive manner.
