

John Dwyer

Mr Wow Factor - Australia's leading business marketeer

John Dwyer is renowned as one of Australia's foremost business marketeers whose goal is to blow the lid off conventional marketing thinking.

He is the founder and owner of The Institute of Wow, a marketing consultancy business which develops sales-stimulating ideas for businesses both small and large. John believes that all marketing should have a 'wow factor' and many of his ideas have certainly achieved this goal for his clients.

One of John's recent coups was obtaining US comedian Jerry Seinfeld to be the spokesperson for The Greater Building Society's advertising campaigns. Given that Jerry has only ever appeared in two other advertising campaigns, American Express and Microsoft, even John admits that this was "the wow of all wows!"

According to John, this coup is evidence of what can happen when you think outside the square and are prepared to be bold.

In the mid-80s John established his own advertising agency called Dynamic Ideas and boasted clients such as News Ltd, KFC, McDonald's, 7 Eleven, Coca-Cola and Caltex. In the mid-90s, John entered the trading card market and in his first year of producing the Rugby League bubble-gum football cards, he grew sales from $2 million to $12 million retail.

John sold his advertising and trading card business in the mid-90s and concentrated on producing a ground-breaking, feel-good television program called Dreams Can Come True for the Ten Network. Hosted by Daryl Braithwaite, the series revolved around delivering surprise dreams to needy people. John managed to convince the likes of Michael Jordan, Princess Di, Paul Hogan, Meatloaf and even Steven Spielberg to contribute to delivering wonderful surprises to worthwhile recipients.

Since the late 90s, business owners and managers around Australia have been adopting John's marketing philosophy via his Wow Factor Marketing Seminars. He also speaks at events staged by promoters including Knowledge Source, Universal Events, Pat Mesiti, Mal Emery and Brett McFall.

In August 2012, John released his first book, The Wow Manifesto, in which he reveals his 10 Point Wow Manifesto Marketing System, detailing what every business owner or manager should implement to dramatically increase their customer base. In typical 'JD style' it stands out from every other book on the market due to its size (tabloid!) and presentation style.

John Dwyer talks about:

- The Wow Manifesto - John's 10-point proven marketing system to catapult sales for any business. Topics cover Research, How To Develop a Wow Factor, How to Hold Events, Be Different Online, How to use Video Testimonials, How to get Free Publicity, How to Build Repetitive Trade and much more.
- How to be the Celebrity Expert of your Industry - Transform yourself or your business from being a 'generalist' to a 'celebrity expert' and sky-rocket your status to the level of 'trusted adviser'. Learn how to fast-track your persona to 'expert status' and just watch people gravitate naturally to you.

John is an engaging and fun presenter who helps businesses to unlock their hidden potential and use innovative and dynamic marketing strategies to break sales record after sales record.

Client Testimonials

He's definitely the best small business marketer that I have ever come across - and I've seen him literally double the sales for small businesses in the space of just weeks. His ideas are sharp and very clever. Once you have him on your side, your competitors should be shaking in their boots!

With John, you get the immeasurable benefit of Steven Spielberg type thinking for your small business, but at home-movie rates! I'm flabbergasted how he continues to come up with creative marketing ideas that are universally applicable across all sorts of businesses and industries. That is a very, very rare skill indeed.

Loud Advertising

I'm in the research business and therefore come across many marketing people. I have never come across a marketing person like John before. His rapid-fire creativity and spontaneity leave me speechless. He is an extraordinary marketer, retail specialist and advertiser - probably the best combination of the three that I've come across in 35 years in advertising.

Let's get things clear. We're talking about the guy who convinced Jerry Seinfeld to be spokesman for a small Australian bank, now making himself available to hairdressers, butchers, pool cleaners, health spas, gyms and any other small business. So you're getting a Rolls Royce for the price of a Honda.

Working with JD is an absolute blast. He is a delight to be around and his quick wit and sense of humour is matched only by his marketing brilliance when it comes to helping small businesses. I'm always amazed at the way JD can deliver tremendous marketing ideas in the snap of a finger. And I'm also amazed at the success rate his ideas have.
