

Mark Taylor AO

Former Australian Cricket Captain

When Mark Taylor AO retired from international cricket, the curtain fell on an outstanding career as a player and Test captain. In a stunning farewell tribute, the influential international cricket bible Wisden saluted Mark Anthony Taylor as 'the greatest modern day captain'.

During the decade the 1999 Australian of the Year opened the batting for his country and the five years he was its highly-acclaimed and successful captain, the New South Welshman, voted Australia's most admired sportsperson by Inside Sport magazine in the year of his retirement, was in the vanguard of a triumphant era for Australian cricket, departing the game with his country clearly the No. 1 Test-playing nation.

During the Taylor regime, the record books were constantly updated on both a team and personal front. Taylor, himself, left the game with several proud personal milestones.

Among them was his then-record equalling 334 not out in the second Test against Pakistan at Peshawar in October, 1998.

His history-making, 12-hour innings, compiled from 564 balls and laced with 32 fours and one six, enabled him to then share the mantle as Australia's highest run scorer in Test cricket with the incomparable Sir Donald Bradman, who scored his 334 against England at Leeds 68 years earlier.

Mark Taylor played 104 Tests for Australia, 50 as captain, scoring 7,525 runs at 43.50. An outstanding slips fieldsman, he took 157 catches, holding the world record until Mark Waugh passed his mark.

In 2003 Mark was appointed an Officer in the General Division of the Order of Australia (AO) for his outstanding contribution to cricket and support of organisations involved in fundraising for cancer research.

That same year he was also inducted into Sport Australia's Hall of Fame as well as receiving a Centenary Medal for his services to the community and cricket.

In 2011, Mark was inducted in the Australian Cricket hall of Fame, joining such luminaries as Sir Donald Bradman, Victor Trumper, Bill O'Reilly, Keith Miller, Arthur Morris, brothers Ian and Greg Chappell, Richie Benaud and Dennis Lillee.

Mark Taylor serves as a board member of Cricket NSW and Cricket Australia. To mark his playing days with Northern Districts in Sydney, Mark Taylor in 2011 had the honour of having the club's home ground, Waitara Oval, renamed Mark Taylor Oval.

Away from cricket, Mark is a former NSW Father of the Year (1995) and a successful author (Time to Declare, 1999). His other great sporting love is recreational fishing and in 2012, he was appointed an ambassador of Keep Australia Fishing.

A member of the Nine Network's cricket commentary team, he is considered one of Australia's most inspirational corporate speakers.

Client Testimonials

Mark was hands down the best conference dinner from the sporting realm we have engaged to date. His passion and enthusiasm for cricket and life in general was well received by all regardless of sporting preference or nationality. He was extremely generous after this speech interacting with attendees. He hit his conference dinner speech for a six!
