

Ross Greenwood

Finance Editor, Nine Network

Ross Greenwood is the Nine Network's Finance Editor. Ross has also been editor of Business Review Weekly (BRW), Personal Investor and The Age's money section.

For four years, Ross was the editor-in-chief of the weekly UK magazine Shares. He is one of the founders of Shares, which won the UK publishing industry's magazine launch of the year award in 2000. The magazine also won three other major journalism and publishing awards.

His television experience in the UK includes being a regular commentator on the BBC, CNN, Sky News and Bloomberg. He was a regular presenter of BBC Five Live's key business program, Wake up to Money.

In Australia, Ross was editor of Business Review Weekly (BRW), Personal Investor and The Age's money section. In television he was a presenter on Network 10's Healthy Wealthy and Wise for five years and was the finance presenter for Good Morning Australia. He also hosted finance programs for ABC radio for eight years.

In the finance industry Ross has been a director of a sharemarket-listed investment company and for six years was chairman of the investment committee of the JUST superannuation fund, the industry fund for journalists and entertainers.

In 1997 he was named Superannuation Trustee of the Year by the Australian Institute of Superannuation Trustees for his work with JUST. Ross' journalism in Australia has also won numerous awards.

VIEW SPEAKER'S BIO ONLINE ▶