

Grahame Bond

TV Host & Aunty Jack

Grahame Bond is one of Australia's most prolific, influential and best-loved personalities. Having entertained and informed Australians for over thirty years, Grahame says he's been "trapped in the A's" - art, architecture, acting, advertising, archaeology and of course, Aunty Jack.

Grahame began his career at Sydney University as a founding member of the Architecture Revue, which included Geoffrey Atherden (writer, Mother and Son, Grassroots), Peter Weir (director, Gallipoli, The Truman Show), Peter Best (composer Crocodile Dundee, Wildside) and Rory O'Donoghue (Aunty Jack, Bushtucker Man).

In 1967 he graduated with a Bachelor of Architecture Degree, and began tutoring in Design at Sydney University.

In 1971, he created the ground-breaking ABC comedy series Aunty Jack, which was followed by Flash Nick from Jindavick, Wollongong the Brave and the Off Show. In 1997, Aunty Jack appeared on British television as Not the Aunty Jack Show on London Weekend Television.

As a musical writer, in 1970 Grahame wrote and performed in Hamlet on Ice. In 1978, together with Jim Burnett, Grahame wrote the long running musical Boys Own McBeth that toured both Australia and America successfully. In the 80s, he wrote and directed the musical Captain Bloody for the Elizabethan Theatre Trust.

Grahame has won numerous awards including a Logie for Best Australian Comedy (Aunty Jack), an Awgie Ward from the Australian Writer's Guild in recognition for his contribution to Australian comedy, and the 1981 AFI Music Award for Best Soundtrack for the feature film Fatty Fin.

In 1990, Grahame opened his own advertising agency Bond Strohfeldt, winning many blue chip clients including Daihatsu, Bridgestone, Virgin and Disney. In 1996 he sold the business for the opportunity to travel.

As an adventurer Grahame has trekked in Nepal, canoed in Kakadu, cycled from Hanoi to Saigon, dug up archaeological ruins in Jordan, Cyprus and Syria, and most recently filmed a documentary in Papua New Guinea titled, The Big Chief.

Grahame hosted Channel Seven's Whose House is it Anyway, and was an Architect on Better Homes and Gardens for six years.

Grahame's experience as an architect, comedian, performer, television presenter, musician and budding archaeologist, as well as his infectious enthusiasm and sense of humour, make him an entertaining, inspiring and thought-provoking speaker.

Client testimonials

“ Grahame was excellent...and the client was very happy, He was extremely easy to deal with, very contactable and approachable and I was very happy to have him talk directly to the client because I felt confident that he really understood what we were looking for.

- 2006 Roche Mid Year Meeting

“ The audience laughed hard throughout Grahame's heady mix of amusing anecdotes, funny stories, hilarious video segments and live song interludes. By the finale, when Grahame began singing 'Farewell Aunty Jack' and the crowd was singing along, you knew just how many people remembered and loved our Aunty Jack.

- Australian Stainless Steel Development

VIEW SPEAKER'S BIO ONLINE ↗

